Our Commitment

Guided by our core values, Sonoma State University offers an exceptional educational experience that fosters intellectual, cognitive, social, and personal growth. As the only member of the Council of Public Liberal Arts Colleges in California, we are uniquely positioned to foster ethical exploration, civic engagement, social responsibility, and global awareness combined with a solid foundation in an academic discipline. We have a strong commitment to graduating students who have the ability to think critically and communicate effectively in an ever-changing world. The unique campus culture fosters our Seawolf Commitment to integrity, respect, excellence, and responsibility and is integrated into all campus life. We nurture inclusive excellence through a celebration of the rich diversity of our local communities and our interconnected global economy. Members of the University community are expected to work effectively with faculty, staff, and students from diverse ethnic, cultural, and socioeconomic backgrounds. We are fully committed to the rights of students, staff and faculty with disabilities in accordance with applicable state and federal laws. SSU is especially interested in candidates who make contributions to equity and inclusion in the pursuit of excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service.

The University

Sonoma State University's beautiful 274-acre campus is located in Sonoma County wine country, an hour north of San Francisco. The campus offers the ideal setting for teaching and learning and access to a community of rich cultural, environmental, and recreational opportunities. Founded in 1960, Sonoma State University is one of the 23 campuses of the California State University System. As members of the largest public higher educational system in the nation, we provide accessible, high-quality education to more than 9,000 students. Sonoma State University is proud to be a Hispanic Serving Institution committed to achieving the goals of equal opportunity and endeavors to employ faculty and staff reflecting the ethnic and cultural diversity of the region and state.

The Department

Majors in the Department of Chemistry may pursue a B.S in chemistry, (certified by the American Chemical Society), a B.S. in biochemistry or a B.A. in chemistry. A minor in chemistry is also offered. The Department's objectives include providing students with a broad, fundamental background in chemistry (in a liberal arts setting) and its applications to prepare them to work in industry or in research laboratories, pursue graduate study, or professional school. Many graduates go on to graduate schools, health professional schools or find employment in local industries. The Department also provides important courses in the University's general education program and supports other majors.

The Chemistry Department is currently composed of 5 full-time equivalent faculty members, 1.75 support staff, and approximately 140 majors. The Department emphasizes quality undergraduate instruction and offers considerable hands-on experience with close student-faculty contact in classes and in research. The curriculum has been designed to emphasize modern laboratory techniques. The department's advanced instrumentation includes a GC-MS, FT-IR, several HPLC instruments, UV-Vis and fluorescence spectrophotometers, AAS and FT-NMR (60 and 400 MHz). Also available in the Keck Microanalysis Laboratory are a scanning electron microscope with energy-dispersive x-ray analysis, two atomic force microscopes, an Auger spectrometer and an epifluorescent and laser scanning confocal microscope. The department primarily occupies a large part of the 3rd floor of Darwin Hall (approx. 9000 sq. ft., including faculty offices) as well as lab space in Carson Hall.
